Astura launches Legio by Astura[®], first platform to generate legal documents conceived and designed by lawyers

Astura, a French independent law firm, has developed Legio by Astura[®], an innovative software solution to generate legal documents of high quality simply and rapidly. This web platform, with a private and secured access, enables users to create on their own documents of professional quality up to date with the last regulatory reforms.

Legio relies on the know-how of Astura lawyers and their recognized expertise, acquired with large clients, in corporate law, mergers and acquisitions, commercial law, intellectual property and information technology.

Legio by Astura makes the process of drafting legal documents faster and more secure. It also offers a service of tailored legal advice and a direct access to Astura lawyers.

Astura proposes three options to access its Legio platform:

The standard offer gives an access to document templates developed by Astura following a directed track. Templates may be accessed with all of their options. They take into account the needs of the user company while accelerating the process of generating documents.

The semi-tailored offer enables additional adjustments and specific configurations adapted to the needs and the specific policies established by the user company (payment deadlines, ethical clauses, confidentiality, sustainable development, etc.).

The bespoke integration offer conceived for larger groups, gives the possibility to integrate the group's own templates into Legio in order to automate the drafting of documents. By doing so, legal departments of large groups gain time in generating their documents. Legal departments may also delegate the generation of documents to their operating teams (sales, procurement, etc.) after having defined and approved the processes to follow in Legio and applicable configurations.

Astura obtained a special authorization from the Paris Bar to develop this platform.

Matthieu Mélin and Raphaël Dalmas, co-founders of Astura state " In a context where we face digital expansion and growing complexity of our legal environment, we have developed for the past three years this ambitious platform. Conceived for all-sized companies from all sectors, the platform deals with the most regular legal needs via documents drafted and up to date by our own team of lawyers. It also allows, according to the size and the needs of the company, to securely integrate a company's own agreements. Beyond the simplicity of use and the time saving it represents, this platform is an opportunity to place the lawyer's counseling mission at the heart of the client-attorney relationship".
